A Transfer on Death Deed (TODD) is a non-probate mechanism to transfer real property which takes effect upon the death of the transferor. While TODDs may go by several different terms of art such as “beneficiary deeds” or “Residential Real Property Transfer on Death Instrument,” these instruments have several common features. However, significant jurisdictional differences and intricacies may exist.

The main purpose of a TODD is to keep a house or other real property out of probate and provide an immediate and simple transfer to the new owner. For jurisdictions where probate may be expensive and time-consuming, a TODD provides a method to keep property out of probate and save time and expense. These instruments usually have the same basic requirements of a deed with additional requirements such as expressly stating that the transfer does not become effective until the death of the transferor. TODDs must typically meet the normal deed requirements such as the legal description of the land and recordation in the appropriate state offices prior to death. However, a TODD typically does not have any effect on the owner’s current rights until the owner’s death. Additionally, different from an ordinary deed, TODDs are revocable by the owner, or in some jurisdictions, an agent of the owner, prior to death. This provides a flexible instrument contingent on the intent of the owner-grantor.

As of January 14, 2022, twenty-nine states, along with the District of Columbia and the U.S. Virgin Islands, have some form of TODD. Of these jurisdictions, nineteen have adopted the Uniform Real Property Transfer on Death Act.

Also as of January 14, 2022, the Uniform Act was pending in Tennessee.

If you detect any issues with this survey, please send your comments to me at gwb@professorbeyer.com so that appropriate changes may be timely made.

This survey would not have been possible without the stellar assistance of Mr. Joseph Reynolds (J.D. 2020, Texas Tech University School of Law), William Langford (J.D. 2021, Texas Tech University School of Law), and Jake W. Villanueva (2023 J.D. Candidate, Texas Tech University School of Law).

² Alaska Stat. § 13.48.030.

⁴ A valid TODD must state that the transfer to the beneficiary occurs upon the death of the transferor. The TODD must identify the beneficiary by name and not by class. A TODD that identifies the beneficiaries by a class is void. The TODD must be recorded before the transferor's death in the public records in the office of the recorder in the recording district where the property is located. § 13.48.050.

⁵ § 13.48.120.

⁷ The interest of a designated beneficiary is contingent on the designated beneficiary surviving the transferor; the interest of a designated beneficiary that fails to survive the transferor lapses, however this provision is subject to the provisions of the TODD. § 13.48.090.

⁸ Id. (“(3) subject to (4) and (5) of this subsection, concurrent interests are transferred to the beneficiaries in equal and undivided shares with no right of survivorship; (4) if the transferor has identified two or more designated beneficiaries to receive concurrent interests in the property and if the transferor has not named an alternate designated beneficiary under (5) of this subsection for the share of a designated beneficiary that lapses or fails for any reason, the lapsing or failing share is transferred to the other remaining designated beneficiaries in proportion to the interest of each remaining beneficiary in the remaining part of the property held concurrently; (5) the transferor may identify one or more alternate designated beneficiaries to take the share of a designated beneficiary that lapses or fails for any reason.”).

¹⁰ Id. (“(c) If a transferor is a joint owner and is (1) survived by one or more other joint owners, the property that is the subject of a transfer on death deed belongs to the surviving joint owner or owners with right of survivorship; or (2) the last surviving joint owner, the transfer on death deed is effective.”).

¹¹ § 13.48.060.

¹³ Id.

¹⁵ A TODD is revocable even if the deed or another instrument contains a contrary provision. § 13.48.020.

¹⁶ An instrument is effective to revoke the TODD, or any part of the TODD if the instrument is: (1) another valid TODD that expressly revokes the previous TODD or by inconsistency; (2) an instrument of revocation that expressly revokes the TODD in part or whole; (3) an inter vivos deed that expressly revokes the transfer on death deed or part of the deed; or (4) to the extent of the interest transferred by the inter vivos deed, an inter vivos deed that transfers an interest in property that is the subject of a transfer on death deed; and the instrument is acknowledged by the transferor after the acknowledgment of the TODD being revoked and recorded in the office of the recorder in the recording district where the property is located prior to the transferor's death. § 13.48.070.

¹⁹ § 13.48.080 (“During a transferor's life, a transfer on death deed does not (1) affect an interest or right of the transferor or any other owner, including the right to transfer or encumber the property; (2) affect an interest or right of a transferee, even if the transferee has actual or constructive notice of the deed; (3) affect an interest or right of a secured or unsecured creditor or future creditor of the transferor, even if the creditor has actual or constructive notice of the deed; (4) affect the transferor's or designated beneficiary's eligibility for any form of public assistance; (5) create a legal or equitable interest in favor of the designated beneficiary; or (6) subject the property to claims or process of a creditor of the designated beneficiary.”).

²⁰ § 13.48.070(a)(1)(A)

²¹ § 13.48.090.

²² § 13.48.140.

²³ § 13.48.140 (“(a) To the extent the transferor's probate estate is insufficient to satisfy an allowed claim against the estate, the costs of administration of the estate, or a statutory allowance to a surviving spouse or child, the estate may enforce the liability against property transferred at the transferor's death by a transfer on death deed. (b) If more than one property is transferred by one or more transfer on death deeds, the liability under (a) of this section is apportioned among the properties in proportion to their net values at the transferor's death. (c) A proceeding to enforce the liability under this section must be commenced not later than 12 months after the transferor's death. A proceeding to enforce the liability under (a) of this section may not be commenced unless the personal representative of the transferor's estate has received a written demand by the surviving spouse, a creditor, a child, or a person acting for a child of the decedent.”).

⁴ § 33-405 (A)

⁶ Arizona statutory form for beneficiary deed permits the conveyance of the property upon death to transfer to estate of the grantee beneficiary in the event that the grantee beneficiary predeceases the transferor. § 33-405(K).

⁹ § 33-405 (D) (“If real property is owned as joint tenants with the right of survivorship or as community property with the right of survivorship, a deed that conveys an interest in the real property to a grantee beneficiary designated by all of the then surviving owners and that expressly states that the deed is effective on the death of the last surviving owner transfers the interest to the designated grantee beneficiary effective on the death of the last surviving owner. If a beneficiary deed is executed by fewer than all of the owners of real property owned as joint tenants with right of survivorship or community property with right of survivorship, the beneficiary deed is valid if the last surviving owner is one of the persons who executes the beneficiary deed. If the last surviving owner did not execute the beneficiary deed, the transfer shall lapse and the deed is void. An estate in joint tenancy with right of survivorship or community property with right of survivorship is not affected by the execution of a beneficiary deed that is executed by fewer than all of the owners of the real property, and the rights of a surviving joint tenant with right of survivorship or a surviving spouse in community property with right of survivorship shall prevail over a grantee beneficiary named in a beneficiary deed.”).

¹³ § 33-405 (F) (“A beneficiary deed may be revoked at any time by the owner or, if there is more than one owner, by any of the owners who executed the beneficiary deed. To be effective, the revocation must be executed and recorded as provided by law in the office of the county recorder of the county in which the real property is located before the death of the owner who executes the revocation. If the real property is owned as joint tenants with right of survivorship or community property with right of survivorship and if the revocation is not executed by all the owners, the revocation is not effective unless executed by the last surviving owner.”).

¹⁵ § 33-405 (G) (“If an owner executes and records more than one beneficiary deed concerning the same real property, the last beneficiary deed that is recorded before the owner’s death is the effective beneficiary deed.”).

¹⁶ § 33-405 (H) (“This section does not prohibit other methods of conveying property that are permitted by law and that have the effect of postponing enjoyment of an interest in real property until the death of the owner. This section does not invalidate any deed otherwise effective by law to convey title to the interests and estates provided in the deed that is not recorded until after the death of the owner.”)

⁵ § 5302.23(B)(1) (“(1) An interest of a deceased owner shall be transferred to the transfer on death beneficiaries who are identified in the affidavit by name and who survive the deceased owner or that are in existence on the date of the deceased owner’s death. If there is a designation of more than one transfer on death beneficiary, the beneficiaries shall take title to the interest in equal shares as tenants in common, unless the deceased owner has specifically designated other than equal shares or has designated that the beneficiaries take title as survivorship tenants, subject to division (B)(3) of this section. If a transfer on death beneficiary does not survive the deceased owner or is not in existence on the date of the deceased owner’s death, and the deceased owner has designated one or more persons as contingent transfer on death beneficiaries as provided in division (B)(2) of this section, the designated contingent transfer on death beneficiary shall take the same interest that would have passed to the transfer on death beneficiary had that transfer on death beneficiary survived the deceased owner or been in existence on the date of the deceased owner’s death. If none of the designated transfer on death beneficiaries survives the deceased owner or is in existence on the date of the deceased owner’s death and no contingent transfer on death beneficiaries have been designated, have survived the deceased owner, or are in existence on the date of death of the deceased owner, the interest of the deceased owner shall be distributed as part of the probate estate of the deceased owner of the interest. If there are two or more transfer on death beneficiaries and the deceased owner has designated that title to the interest in the real property be taken by those beneficiaries as survivorship tenants, no designated contingent transfer on death beneficiaries shall take title to the interest unless none of the transfer on death beneficiaries survives the deceased owner on the date of death of the deceased owner.”).

⁸ § 2-18-103(d) (“If real property is owned by persons as joint tenants with the right of survivorship, a deed that conveys an interest in the real property to a grantee beneficiary designated by all of the then surviving owners and that expressly states that the deed is effective on the death of the last surviving owner transfers the interest to the designated grantee beneficiary effective on the death of the last surviving owner. If a transfer on death deed is executed by fewer than all of the owners of real property owned as joint tenants with right of survivorship, the transfer on death deed is valid if the last surviving owner is one of the persons who executes the transfer on death deed. If the last surviving owner did not execute the transfer on death deed, the transfer lapses and the deed is void. An estate in joint tenancy with right of survivorship is not affected by the execution of a transfer on death deed that is executed by fewer than all of the owners of the real property, and the rights of a surviving joint tenant with right of survivorship prevail over a grantee beneficiary named in a transfer on death deed.”) see also Wyo. Stat. § 2-18-103(f) (“if there is more than one (1) owner, by any of the owners who executed the transfer on death deed. To be effective, the revocation must be executed and recorded, as provided by law, in the office of the county clerk in the county in which the real property is situated, before the death of the owner who executes the revocation. If the real property is owned as joint tenants with right of survivorship and if the revocation is not executed by all the owners who executed the transfer on death deed, the revocation is not effective unless executed by the last surviving owner.”).
